Mohd Aminurdin bin Ahmad v Public Prosecutor

B HIGH COURT (MIRI) — CRIMINAL APPEAL NO MYY-42H-3/9 OF 2017
ALWI ABDUL WAHAB JC
21 DECEMBER 2017

C Criminal Procedure — Appeal — Appeal against sentence — Youthful offender — Whether sentence imposed by learned sessions court judge excessive — Whether appellant should be bound over under ss 293 and 294 of the Criminal Procedure Code — Whether conduct of complainant should be considered — Criminal Procedure Code ss 293 & 294 — Penal Code s 376(2)(d)

D

The appellant was charged for an offence of rape which he pleaded guilty to and was sentenced to ten years imprisonment under s 376(2)(d) of the Penal Code ('the Code'). On 12 March 2017, the complainant had gone out with her friend, Haslina, together with Mirul and the appellant. Both the complainant E and Haslina later went on their separate ways where Haslina followed Mirul and the complainant followed the appellant on a motorcycle. The complainant was brought to various places before they finally stopped at Pulau Melayu slightly after midnight to wait for Haslina and Mirul. When Haslina and Mirul did not appear, the appellant and complainant proceeded to Lutong beach F where the appellant raped the complainant. The crux of the appeal by the appellant was that the sentence imposed by the learned sessions court judge ('SCJ') was excessive without considering the age of the appellant who was 19 years old at the time of the offence. The appellant submitted that he should be bound over under ss 293 and 294 of the Criminal Procedure Code ('the G CPC') as he was a youthful offender. It was further submitted that the SCJ had failed to consider and take into consideration the conduct of the complainant when she volunteered herself to follow the appellant.

Held, dismissing the appeal and upholding sentence imposed by learned SCJ:

H

(1) The offence committed by the appellant was serious. The severity of the offence far outweighed the clean record of the appellant. The appellants act was clearly premeditated as the complainant was brought to various places after midnight before the appellant proceeded to rape the I complainant at a strategic location at Lutong beach (see paras 9 & 13).

(2) Section 293 of the CPC could not be used arbitrarily in the sense that, if the offence was committed by a youthful offender, he would automatically be entitled to a lenient sentence and be bound over (see para 13).

(3) The learned SCJ was not wrong in passing the sentence as he did. He had considered the overall factors before passing the sentence on the appellant. A minimum imprisonment sentence of ten years was passed by the SCJ. The appellant was also spared from whipping due to his young age (see paras 15 & 17).

[Bahasa Malaysia summary

Perayu dituduh kerana kesalahan merogol yang mana dia mengaku bersalah dan dihukum sepuluh tahun penjara di bawah s 376(2)(d) Kanun Keseksaan ('Kanun'). Pada 12 Mac 2017, pengadu telah keluar dengan kawannya, Haslina, bersama dengan Mirul dan perayu. Pengadu dan Haslina kedua-duanya kemudian beredar dan mengikut haluan masing-masing di mana Haslina mengikut Mirul dan pengadu mengikut perayu menaiki motosikal. Pengadu dibawa ke pelbagai tempat dan akhir sekali mereka berhenti di Pulau Melayu seketika selepas tengah malam untuk menunggu Haslina dan Mirul. Apabila Haslina dan Mirul tidak datang, perayu dan pengadu meneruskan perjalanan ke pantai Lutong di mana perayu merogol pengadu. Teras rayuan oleh perayu adalah bahawa hukuman yang dikenakan oleh hakim mahkamah sesyen yang bijaksana ('HMS') adalah berlebihan tanpa mempertimbangkan umur perayu yang baru 19 tahun pada ketika kesalahan tersebut. Perayu berhujah bahawa di patut terikat di bawah ss 293 dan 294 Kanun Tatacara Jenayah ('KTJ') kerana dia adalah pesalah muda. Ia selanjutnya dihujahkan bahawa HMS telah gagal untuk mempertimbangkan dan mengambil kira tingkah laku pengadu apabila dia defendan sukarela mengikut perayu. Diputuskan, menolak rayuan dan mengesahkan hukuman yang dikenakan oleh HMS yang bijaksana:

(1) Kesalahan yang dilakukan oleh perayu adalah serius. Keseriusan kesalahan jauh melebihi rekod bersih perayu. Tindakan perayu jelas dirancang terlebih dahulu kerana pengadu dibawa ke pelbagai tempat selepas tengah malam sebelum perayu meneruskan untuk merogol pengadu di tempat strategik di pantai Lutong (lihat perenggan 9 & 13).

(2) Seksyen 293 KTJ tidak boleh diguna sewenang-wenangnya dalam perkara ini, jika kesalahan dilakukan oleh pesalah muda, dia akan secara automatik berhak kepada hukuman yang lebih ringan dan terikat (lihat perenggan 13).

(3) HMS yang bijaksana tidak salah dalam menjatuhkan hukuman seperti yang dilakukannya. Beliau telah mempertimbangkan kesemua faktor sebelum menjatuhkan hukuman ke atas perayu. Hukuman penjara yang minimum sepuluh tahun dijatuhkan oleh HMS. Perayu juga terselamat daripada dirotan kerana usia mudanya (lihat perenggan 15 & 17).]

Alwi Abdul Wahab JC:

INTRODUCTION

[1] This is an appeal on sentence by the appellant against the decision of the learned sessions court judge ('SCJ') handed down on 5 September 2017 whereby he sentenced the appellant to ten years imprisonment for an offence of rape under s 376(2)(d) of the Penal Code.

[2] The charge:

> Bahawa kamu pada 13.3.2017 jam lebih kurang antara 0130hrs hingga 0400hrs bertempat di tepi kawasan pantai Lutong, di dalam daerah Miri, di dalam Negeri Sarawak, didapati telah merogol seorang perempuan bernama Felecia Anak Nyanggau (P), KPT: 011024-13-1130, umur: 15 tahun 04 bulan. Oleh yang demikian, kamu telah melakukan kesalahan yang boleh dihukum di bawah seksyen 376(2)(d) Kanun Keseksaan.

THE FACTS

[3] Briefly, the facts of the case are that on 12 March 2017 at about 2200 hours, the complainant ie the victim in the present case went out with her female friend, Haslina together with two other males named 'Mirul' and 'Am' who are the friends of Haslina. Both, the complainant and Haslina later went on their separate ways where Haslina followed Mirul whilst the complainant followed Am on a motorcycle. The complainant was brought to various places namely Marina Bay, Tanjung Lobang, City Fan before they finally stopped at Pulau Melayu at about 0005 hours on 13 March 2017 to wait for Haslina and Mirul. When both Haslina and Mirul did not appear until 0130 hours, Am and the complainant proceeded to Lutong beach where Am raped the complainant. Thereafter, Am sent the complainant back to her house at Desa Pujut at about 0400 hours. Am is the appellant in the present case. He was arrested on 15 March 2017.

THE APPEAL

[4] The appellant pleaded guilty to the above charge and sentenced to ten years imprisonment. Since the appellant had pleaded guilty to the charge, the appeal is only confined to the extent and legality of the sentence as provided under s 305 of the Criminal Procedure Code ('the CPC').

[5] The crux of the appeal by the appellant was that the sentence imposed by the learned SCJ was manifestly excessive without judicially considering the age and antecedents of the appellant who was 19 years old at the time of the commission of the offence. It was the appellant's submission that the appellant being a youthful offender should be bound over under ss 293 and 294 of the CPC.

[6] Learned counsel for the appellant submitted that the learned SCJ had failed to consider and to take into consideration the conduct of the complainant when she volunteered herself to follow the appellant who was unknown to her. Had she not followed the stranger, the incident could have been avoided. It was also submitted that the complainant's parents should not have allowed the complainant to go out at the late hour of the night as she was only 15 years old at that material time.

[7] It was further contended by learned counsel for the appellant that there was a plea bargaining conducted in the learned SCJ's chambers in the presence of the parties ie learned deputy public prosecutor and learned counsel for the appellant on 14 August 2017 before the appellant decided to plead guilty.

THE COURT'S FINDINGS

[8] It is a trite law that the High Court will not normally interfere with a sentence judicially considered by a lower court as long as it passes sentence according to the correct principle of law.

[9] I agree with the learned SCJ when he viewed the offence committed by the appellant as serious and its severity far outweighed the clean record of the appellant.

[10] Learned counsel's submission that the complainant should not have followed the appellant in the first place, to a certain extent, may be correct but this cannot be used as an excuse for the appellant to commit rape against her. The complainant was merely following the appellant for the motorcycle ride and did not consent to such criminal act.

[11] I am aware of the established principle of sentence of the young offender as pronounced in the case of Tukiran bin Taib v PP [1955] 1 MLJ 24 where Bellamy J held, inter alia, that:

> It is desirable that young offenders, that is, offenders between the ages of 17 and 21, who are first offenders should be kept out of prison, if possible

[12] Learned counsel for the appellant referred to the case of Nor Afizal bin Azizan v Public Prosecutor [2012] 6 MLJ 171; [2012] 6 CLJ 370 which case involved a young age offender committing a statutory rape against an underage girl who consented to the act. He was bound over by the Court of Appeal pursuant to s 294 of the CPC. The fact of that case must be distinguished with the fact of the present case. As the learned judge in the present case had stated in his grounds of sentencing that the sexual act was not consensual, and the element of assault involved where the complainant had sustained bodily injuries as a result of the appellant's act. Even in Afizal's case, the Court of Appeal has stated in clear terms that whatever sentence that is going to be imposed on this type of cases which involved young offenders must be based on the facts of each individual case. Simply put, this is not a case where one size fits all.

[13] The learned SCJ said that he had considered the mitigation raised by the appellant including the fact that he is a disabled person with a hearing problem but the learned SCJ was quick to add that the appellant should have thought of the consequences of his action prior to committing the offence. Reading from the facts of the case, I find that the appellant's act was premeditated because the complainant was brought to various places after midnight before he was raped at a strategic location at Lutong beach. It would have been a different case if the sexual act is consensual, therefore no force was applied to cause the injury to the complainant. I agree with the learned DPP that s 293 of the CPC cannot be used arbitrarily in the sense that, if the offence is committed by youthful offender, he will automatically be entitled to a lenient sentence and to be bound over (Public Prosecutor v Yap Huat Heng [1985] 2 MLJ 414; [1986] 1 CLJ 81).

THE SOCIAL REPORT

[14] The learned SCJ had also considered the appellant's social report and took into account the suggestion by the welfare officer for the court to pass appropriate sentence against the appellant according to the offence he committed. Part of the recommendations as stated in the social report are as follows:

> 7.0 Pandangan/Ulasan/Syor
> Secara keseluruhannya, semasa kejadian penama berumur 19 tahun 09 bulan 0 hari. Menunjukkan bahawa penama seorang pesalah muda. Ini jelas menunjukkan penama adalah seorang yang masih belum matang bukan sahaja daripada segi pemikiran malah tindak-tanduk beliau kerana pada usia ini, kebiasaannya mereka lebih suka ikut kata hati dan tidak berfikir panjang tanpa memikirkan kesan akibat perbuatan mereka sendiri.

WHETHER THE SENTENCE PASSED ON THE APPELLANT IS EXCESSIVE

[15] The punishment for rape under s 376(2)(d) carries an imprisonment term of not less than ten years and not more than 30 years and also liable to whipping. In the present case, the learned SCJ had passed a minimum imprisonment sentence and spared the appellant from the sentence of whipping because of his young age. It goes without saying that the learned SCJ had considered the overall factors before passing sentence.

PLEA BARGAINING

[16] On the issue of plea bargaining claimed by learned counsel for the appellant, regret to say that the notes of proceedings did not show such plea bargaining had taken place before the learned SCJ. On the contrary, the notes of proceedings showed that the prosecution had pressed for a sentence that reflects the severity of the offence and the sentence imposed must be able to send a strong message to the public that the court views such offences with complete abhorrence.

CONCLUSION

[17] Considering the serious nature of the offence, the manner how it was committed by the appellant and the traumatic ordeal that the complainant has to go through for the rest of her life, I am of the view that the learned SCJ was not wrong in passing the sentence as he did. The appeal is dismissed, and the sentence imposed by the learned SCJ is accordingly upheld.

Appeal dismissed; sentence imposed by learned SCJ upheld.
